

HQAA: Virtually impossible to bite off more than you can chew.

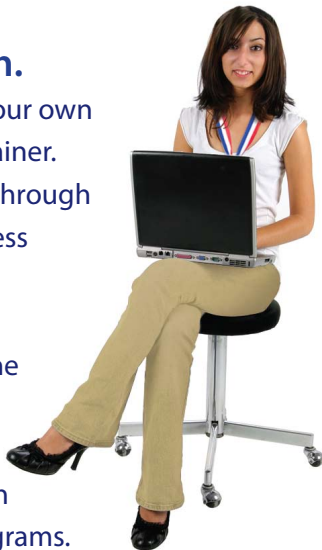

Healthcare Quality Association on Accreditation (HQAA) provides an accreditation program with a focus on quality, simplicity and affordability. Specifically designed for HMEs, our program uses a “bite-size” approach to accreditation.

This guide will show you how our bite-size approach saves time, money and stress.

1. Meet your coach.

The HQAA coach is like your own accreditation personal trainer. He or she will guide you through the documentation process step-by-step.

This helps you manage the process more effectively, reducing both the time and stress associated with typical accreditation programs.

2. Complete your online Workroom.

Not sure where to start? With HQAA, it's easy. In your Workroom, you'll tackle the standards one by one and keep track of your progress online – all with the help of your coach.

3. Prep for the survey.

Your Workroom is 100% complete. Now comes the easy part. At HQAA, your assigned surveyor will first review your Workroom documentation.

Then, he or she will conduct a telephone interview with you prior to determining the site visit. Our goal, by the time of the site survey, is to help you feel as well-prepared, at ease and empowered as possible.

4. Earn accreditation.

Show off your HQAA Quality Champion status! Upon completing the accreditation process, we'll send your organization a letter of accreditation, a certificate of accreditation, and HQAA logo clings for your vehicles and offices. We'll also notify CMS of your successful accreditation.
